To whom it may concern,

I've had the pleasure of knowing Jason for many years. I've watched his talent grow from entertaining children in my home to performing in front of large audiences as a seasoned entertainer.

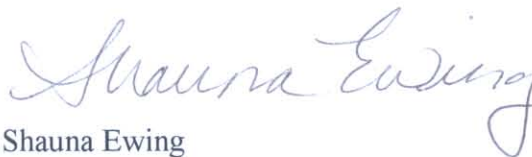

As an event planner for many non-profit organizations, I know that I can always count on him to make me look great. He has entertained at almost every event I have coordinated and without fail he has the audience spellbound. It has become almost as much fun for me to watch the faces of audience as it is to watch him work his magic.

The comments I hear after each event are always positive. Jason entertained an audience of about 500 on St. Patrick's Day 2006 for the Alzheimer's Association – Utah Chapter fundraising gala and had everyone laughing hysterically. In fact one Irish lady whose husband passed away a few months early from Alzheimer's disease said she had not laugh that hard in years and that Jason was exactly what she needed.

You can count on Jason giving 110% during each performance plus he is family friendly - his material is for the all ages.

I'm still amazed at how he can make his face, body and voice imitate dinosaurs, chipmunks, and Elton John. He truly is unique and versatility. You won't go wrong having him as entertainer for any event.

Sincerely,

Shauna Ewing
